

Excellent Longstanding Service to Undergraduate Clinical Education 2021

- Do you have a long-serving member of staff who has been committed to teaching excellence and supported Leeds medical students over many years?

- Leeds School of Medicine wishes to recognise NHS clinical teachers & other NHS staff for their outstanding commitment.

- CLICK HERE for further information on how to nomination. Online submissions welcome

DEADLINE 26th March 2021.

For information, email Dr C Dennis: C.Dennis@leeds.ac.uk

2020 Winners of Excellent Longstanding Service to Undergraduate Clinical Education Awards

Dr Joseph Anathhanam, Calderdale and Huddersfield NHS Foundation Trust.

Dr Anathhanam was nominated by colleagues within Calderdale and Huddersfield NHS Foundation Trust. His dedication and passion for undergraduate medical education has been demonstrated through the creation of a supportive and healthy learning environment for students and excellent placement feedback.

Mr Frank Cottingham, Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust

Mr Cottingham was nominated by colleagues within Leeds Teaching Hospitals Trust. Over the years, he has provided supportive, innovative and high quality educational opportunities and has been a consistent feature of excellent student feedback.

Dr Cathryne Hearnshaw, West Leeds Family Practice

Dr Hearnshaw was nominated by colleagues in recognition of her extensive contribution to undergraduate medical education in Primary Care. Over the years Dr Hearnshaw has provided students an exceptional learning experience where she has supported, encouraged and taught them, shaping them to become excellent doctors.

Dr Tariq Mahmood, Leeds and York Partnership NHS Foundation Trust

Dr Mahmood was nominated by colleagues within Leeds and York Partnership NHS Foundation Trust due to his unending commitment and passion for teaching. Dr Mahmood has shown expertise in providing our students an excellent educational experience – teaching and supervising whilst supporting, encouraging and inspiring many a future doctor.

Mr Kevin Ross, Mid Yorkshire NHS Trust

Mr Ross was nominated by colleagues at the Mid Yorkshire NHS Trust. Over the years, Mr Ross have demonstrated innovative flair and a passion for teaching which has been appreciated by the School of Medicine and especially students, through excellent placement feedback.

Mrs Sharon Walker, Bradford Teaching Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust

Mrs Walker was nominated in recognition of her excellent leadership of undergraduate teaching at Bradford Teaching Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust. For a number of years, Mrs Walker has tirelessly provided a wonderful student experience whilst building and developing a team of educators who help deliver clinically driven curricula.

Mrs Gina White, Leeds and York Partnership NHS Foundation Trust

Mrs White was nominated by colleagues at Leeds and York Partnership NHS Foundation Trust. Over the years, Mrs White has been integral in undergraduate medical education and training due to her pivotal work in shaping their psychiatry placements.

