About these group rules

These group rules are for the Learning disability and Autism Research Access (LARA) group.

If you join the LARA group, please follow our group rules.

You can read our group rules on the next pages.

You can also read the rules on our LARA group webpage here

LARA group rules

Recognise all members' strengths.

Respect all members' views and experiences.

Help to meet members' needs.

Try to avoid using jargon and long words.

If you need to use acronyms, explain what they mean.

An acronym is a word formed from the first letters of a group of words, and is spoken as a word.

For example, NASA.

Do not share information about other members unless they agree to it.

The information in this booklet was adapted from an original written by the Learning disability and Autism Research Access (LARA) group and Thinklusive Advisory group.

This easy-read version has been created with the help of the people below who use easy-read materials themselves.
